Celebrate Irish Poets

Wearing green and rocking shamrocks for St. Patrick's Day on March 17 is all the rage, but have you ever thought about celebrating by browsing through some Irish poetry? World Poetry Day is also observed this month, on the 21st. Celebrate both of these fun holidays by learning more about a few famous Irish poets.

W.B. Yeats. One of the greatest poets of the 20th century, Yeats published over 30 poetry collections and won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1923. As a lover of his country, he mostly wrote poems with Irish settings and subjects.

Seamus Heaney. Poems with deeply meaningful and beautiful verses were a specialty of Heaney's. His work reflected contemporary Irish issues and earned him the Nobel Prize in literature in 1995.

Eavan Boland. Both a poet and a professor at Stanford University, Boland was one of the primary female voices in Irish literature for decades, writing of women's experiences in both everyday life as well as throughout her country's history.

You Can Truly Love to Recycle

Love the environment by using the Valentine's Day cards you receive for other occasions. Cut and paste words, pictures, etc., from the cards to create new, original greetings, ornaments or other crafts. People purchase more than 7 billion valentines annually, but they don't recycle nearly enough of them. Use this opportunity to positively impact the environment.
